This is where John Maxwell's new book, Getting Perspective on What Really Matters, comes in. Maxwell is a world-renowned leadership expert and author, and he has spent his life studying what makes people successful and fulfilled. In this book, he shares his insights on how to get perspective on what is truly important in life.

Maxwell starts by helping readers understand the difference between what is important and what is urgent. Important things are those that contribute to our long-term goals and values. Urgent things are those that demand our immediate attention. It is easy to get caught up in the urgent things in life, but it is important to remember that the important things are often the ones that get neglected.

Once readers understand the difference between what is important and what is urgent, they can start to make better choices about how to spend their time and energy. Maxwell provides a number of helpful tips on how to do this, including:

- Identify your core values. What are the most important things to you in life? Once you know what your core values are, you can start to make decisions that are aligned with them.
- Set goals that are aligned with your values. Your goals should be specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, and time-bound. When your goals are aligned with your values, you are more likely to achieve them.
- Create a plan to achieve your goals. Once you have set your goals, you need to create a plan to achieve them. This plan should be realistic and achievable. It should also be flexible, so that you can adjust it as needed.
- Take action. The most important thing is to take action. Once you have a plan, start taking steps to achieve your goals. Don't be afraid to make mistakes. Everyone makes mistakes. The important thing is to learn from your mistakes and keep moving forward.

Getting perspective on what is truly important in life is not always easy, but it is essential for living a fulfilling life. John Maxwell's book, Getting Perspective on What Really Matters, can help readers get the perspective they need to make better choices and live a more meaningful life.
