About the Book

In How to Parent So Children Will Learn, Dr. Kathy Hirsh-Pasek and Dr. Roberta Michnick Golinkoff, two of the world's leading experts on child development, offer a groundbreaking approach to parenting that will help you raise kids who are excited about learning. Drawing on the latest research in education and child development, How to Parent So Children Will Learn provides practical, research-based advice on how to create a home environment that fosters curiosity, creativity, and a love of learning.

This book is not about teaching your child to read or do math. It's about creating a learning-rich environment where your child can explore their interests, develop their creativity, and learn how to learn. Hirsh-Pasek and Golinkoff argue that the best way to raise a child who loves learning is to provide them with plenty of opportunities to play, explore, and interact with the world around them.

How to Parent So Children Will Learn is divided into three parts:

- Part One: The Power of Play
- Part Two: The Importance of Exploration
- Part Three: The Role of Interaction

In Part One, Hirsh-Pasek and Golinkoff explain why play is so important for children's learning. They discuss the different types of play and provide tips on how to encourage your child to play in ways that promote learning.

In Part Two, Hirsh-Pasek and Golinkoff emphasize the importance of exploration for children's learning. They explain how exploration helps children develop their curiosity, creativity, and problem-solving skills. They also provide tips on how to create a home environment that encourages exploration.

In Part Three, Hirsh-Pasek and Golinkoff discuss the role of interaction in children's learning. They explain how interacting with adults and other children helps children learn about the world around them and develop their social skills. They also provide tips on how to create a home environment that encourages interaction.

How to Parent So Children Will Learn is a must-read for all parents who want to raise kids who are excited about learning. This book provides practical, research-based advice on how to create a home environment that fosters curiosity, creativity, and a love of learning.
