Innovation From Within is a groundbreaking book that provides a new framework for nonprofits to approach problem-solving. By focusing on the power of internal innovation, nonprofits can create sustainable solutions that address the root causes of the problems they are trying to solve.

The book is divided into three parts:

1. Part One: The Power of Internal Innovation

2. Part Two: The Innovation Process

3. Part Three: Putting Innovation Into Action

In Part One, the authors make the case for why nonprofits need to focus on internal innovation. They argue that internal innovation is more sustainable than external innovation, and that it can lead to more effective solutions to the problems that nonprofits are trying to solve.

In Part Two, the authors provide a step-by-step guide to the innovation process. They outline the different stages of the process, from idea generation to implementation. They also provide tools and resources that nonprofits can use to help them through the process.

In Part Three, the authors show how nonprofits can put innovation into action. They provide case studies of nonprofits that have successfully used internal innovation to solve problems. They also offer advice on how nonprofits can overcome the challenges that they may face when trying to implement innovation.

Innovation From Within is a must-read for any nonprofit leader who is looking for new and innovative ways to solve problems. The book provides a practical and actionable framework that can help nonprofits create sustainable solutions that address the root causes of the problems they are trying to solve.
