The Fairbairn-Sykes fighting knife

Hitting home

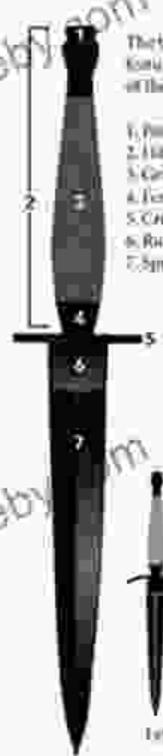

Cutting:
Fairbairn had to use a steel saw instead of a dull blade. He cut faster quickly than a thin cut. So he got a double edge, razor sharp surface.

Stabbing:
The spine of the blade to be slim enough to slip through the rib cage into the heart. Soldiers often filed the very tip to a blunt point as the knife would not get stuck in bone.

Vital parts:

The three main versions. Consider different forms of the basic composition.

1. Pinned out
2. Hole
3. Grip
4. Flexible
5. Cross-guard
6. Ricasso
7. Spine

Grip:

Balance:
Take a fencing cut, the knife goes with extension, just the handle slanted for momentum rather than slashing power.

Force:
To penetrate between the ribs, the knife was held with the blade facing up and the thumb pressed against the cross-guard.

Case V-42 Stiletto

Another knife, designed by Lt. Col. Robert V. Hyndrick, had an indent on the ricasso to give the thumb a better purchase.

Desperate measures

German armies started slinging their rifles over their right shoulder to make it harder for an attacker to hit the control arm on the butt.

Captain Fairbairn's Timetable of Death

Capt. Fairbairn taught his pupils how to inflict the maximum damage, ideally in total silence.

| Location | Time from Stabbing to Death |
|-------------------|--------------------------------|
| Carotid artery | 12 sec. |
| Subclavian artery | 13 sec. |
| Heart | 15 sec. |
| Brachial artery | 15-20 min. |
| Stomach | 15-20 min. (varies with depth) |
