By John Taylor Gatto

In this groundbreaking book, renowned education expert John Taylor Gatto argues that our current system of schooling is failing our children and that it is time for a radical rethink of how we educate them.

Gatto offers a passionate and persuasive case for homeschooling and unschooling, and he provides practical advice on how to implement these alternatives.

Why homeschool?

Gatto argues that homeschooling is superior to traditional schooling for a number of reasons. First, it allows children to learn at their own pace and in their own way. Second, it provides children with a more individualized and tailored education. Third, it allows children to develop closer relationships with their parents and other family members.

Why unschool?

Unschooling is a form of homeschooling that takes a more radical approach. Unschoolers believe that children should not be forced to learn anything that they do not want to learn. Instead, they should be allowed to pursue their own interests and learn at their own pace.

Gatto argues that unschooling is the most natural and effective way to educate children. He believes that children are born with a natural desire to learn and that they will learn best when they are allowed to follow their own interests.

Is homeschooling or unschooling right for my child?

The decision of whether or not to homeschool or unschool your child is a personal one. There is no right or wrong answer. The best way to decide what is best for your child is to do your research and talk to other parents who have homeschooled or unschooled their children.

If you are considering homeschooling or unschooling your child, I encourage you to read this book. It will open your eyes to a whole new way of thinking about education.
